SOCIAL AND PERSONAL!

Are Coming Home. Gray distance hid each shining sail,
lly ruthless breezes borne from me;
And, lessening, fading, faint and pale,
My ships went forth to sea.

Where misty breakers rose and fell I stood and sorrowed hopelessly; For every wave had tales to tell Of wrecks far out at sea.

To-day, a song is on my lips;
Earth seems a paradise to me;
For God is good, and loi my ships
Are coming home from seal

ONCE IN A WHILE.

By NIXON WATERMAN.

Other selections from this author, his portrait, autograph and biographical sketch, have already been printed in this series.

NCE in a while the sun shines out, And the arching skies are a perfect blue; Once in a while, 'mid clouds of doubt, Hope's fairest stars come peeping through; Our paths lead down by the meadows fair, Where the sweetest blossoms nod and smile, And we lay aside our cross of care, Once in a while.

Once in a while within our own We clasp the hand of a steadfast friend; Once in a while we hear a tone Of love, with the heart's own voice to blend; And the dearest of all our dreams come true, And on life's way is a golden mile, Each thirsting flower is kissed with dew, Once in a while.

Once in a while in the desert sand We find a spot of the fairest green; Once in a while from where we stand The hills of Paradise are seen; And a perfect joy in our hearts we hold, A joy that the world cannot defile; We trade earth's dross for the purest gold, Once in a while.

Mr. John S. Eggleston's Memorial Address Gives Rise to Such a Movement.

MONUMENT IS SUGGESTED

Speech Enumerating Jewish Services in Civil War Evokes Widespread Comment.

Mr. John S. Eggleston, assistant to Attorney-General Anderson, and one of the ablest of the younger members of the Virginia bar, recently made an address to the Hebrew Memorial Association in this city, which is being widely quoted and commented upon. The address not only won high encomiums from the auditonce, but it has given rise to a movement to recognize and fittingly commentorate the distinguished services to the Confederacy of its Jewish citizens, both as soldiers and statesmen. Newspapers all over the country are commenting upon the array of historical facts compiled by Mr. Eggleston and promulgated in this speech.

Quotes Richmonder.

In this speech.

Quotes Richmonder.

Among the many comments on the speech, the following from the Baltimore Jewish Comment was reproduced by the Washington Evening Star of Wednesday:

"A writer to a local paper suggests that the Jowish soldiers of the Confederacy ought to be honored with a monument as well as those of the Federal army, a memorial to whom was lately unveiled in New York. That there were many Jowish soldiers who served in the Southern army is well known though it is not so well known that, according to a speaker at the memorial exercises held lately at the Jowish cemetery in Richmond, Va., General Cooper had said that there were between 10,000 and 12,000 Jows who wore the gray, and this statement was made during the war in explanation of his refusal to grantithem leave to observe the fall bolidays. The army could not spare such a large number.

"Ten or twelve thousand may be an exaggerated estimate, but it shows conclusively that they were so numerous that the commanding officer had notice of their numbers. Jews were well seattered through the South during the Civil Wir, and the communities at Richmond, Charleston and Savannah were quite large for those times. They bore their share of the battle, fought with bravery died on the field and suffered the loss of their property along with the impoverished of other creeds. There is absolutely no ground for the statement lately made in an illustrated New York weekly in an

of their property along with the impoverished of other creeds. There is absolutely no ground for the statement lately made in an illustrated New York weekly in an article telling of the development of the South, that the war left all Southern people except the Jews poor.

"In bis address, at the meeting in Richmond John S. Eggleston said that there were twenty-four Jewish staff officers in the Confederate army and eleven officers
in the navy, and, the first surgeon-seneral of the Confederate army was a Jew, General David de Leon. So the Jewish soldier of the South has a right to recognition, and though he fought for a lost cause, his memory should not be lost, too.
It is quite possible that when the records
are made up the Southern Jewish soldier will have quite as proud a record as his brother of the North, whom prominent men took pains lately to honor. Wherever the Jew heard the call for duty he answered, and it is a wonder that in the South, where old-time loyalty and consideration still hold-sway, some attempt has not been made to do justice to the memory of those men who took the field at the call of their State." memory of those men who took the field at the call of their State."

This the Logical Place.

Mr. Eggleston is a young man who has prepared himself for the bar by his own efforts, and has won recognition by the sheer force of his abilities. He is an orator of fine promise, and is a vigorous and forceful writer. He was selected as orator for the Hobrew Memorial Day, tellawing the late Genaral Fitzbugh Lee. following the late General Fitzhugh Lee, who made the address in 1904. His ad-who made the address in 1904. His address, of which but a small extract is printed herewith, showed great research into the history of the Confederacy, and was perhaps the best presentation ever made in this city of the services of the Jewish Confederates.

Should the movement for a monument be consummated, it will also be a memorial of this tribute of Mr. Eggicston's, and Richmond, his home and the place where he made the address, the capital of the Confederacy, would, in the opinion of many be the logical place for the memorial.

PRESIDENT WRITES TO MRS. WADE HAMPTON

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—President Roosevelt in no uncertain words has distinctly set his stamp of disapproval on the publication in "Fads and Fancio" of any reference to himself, and incidentally if his fads or fancies uppear in the publication it will be without his consent, although he admits that he is powerless
to prevent it. The matter is now pluriny
before Colonel Mann, editor of Town
Toples, and there can be no questor of blame if the article appears. Cologic Mann has stated that the President grow
his consent to the publication, and there is unisunderstanding.
Then in the explanations that followed
it was made public that Mrs. Wade Humpton had acted as the intermediary, and the latter, deploring the infsunderstanding, recently wrote to the President at Oyster Bay. Mrs. Hampton said in part in the recent letter;
"You are so skind and so lovely to me that not for a moment did I suppose I was abusing your confidence.
"There was a prompt and characteristic letter from the President, and the following is the actual wording of the letter;

Mys. Wade Implon:

My Dear Madam,—You need not feel badly at all about causing me any annoyance, for your explanation of the matter was see frank and straightforward
as to put the whole thing right, and I have not felt it necessary for me to say anything more. I have no nower to preyent people writing about me whatever they chose, and then there are hundreds of photographs of mine of all kinds,
which can be obtained everywhere, and

which appear in every sort of publication.

It must be distinctly understood, however, that I, of course, give ne authorization for either nicture or article, and in this particular case I would very much prefer if nothing wintever about me appeared, and hope nothing will appear,
Sincerely yours.
THEODORE ROOSEVIELT.

In an appearent endeavor to emphasize his disapproval. in the letter which is typewritten, the President in his own handwriting added a portion of the words that appear. The word "very" in the next to the last line, and the hinal words,
"hope nothing will appear," are written.
